Educational Structure in Japan

Depending on their age, it is compulsory for children to attend primary/elementary or junior high/middle schools in Japan. Parents/guardians must send their children to school during this period. After this period is over, there are various options for students to continue their education or other pathways that they can follow.

Types of High Schools

There are four types of high schools in Japan.

■ Public High Schools (including National High Schools):

- Funded by national, prefectural, or municipal government
- Mixed-sex education

■ Private High Schools:

- Founded by individuals or corporations. In many cases, school expenses are higher than those of public ones. ※
- Some private high schools offer gender-separated education, i.e., high schools only for boys or girls. Of course, there are also mixed-sex private schools.

※ There is a system to assist with private high school tuition fees according to individual household income. ⇒ Please see Page 9.

Are entrance examinations of public high school and private high school the same?

⇒ No. Entrance criteria and procedures differ between public and private high schools.

■ Subjects covered in public high school entrance examinations

⇒ Please see Pages 12 and 13.

■ Private high school entrance examinations

Schedules, contents, and admission criteria are different depending on the school. For further information, talk to the teacher in charge of entrance examinations guidance at your junior high school.

In Osaka, there are four types of high school. They each have different periods of time at school, course lengths, and types of classes.

<Full-Time High Schools>

■ Period of time at school

From morning till evening (generally 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.)

■ Course length

3 years

■ Types of Classes

In many schools providing classes during daytime, students have to take a fixed number of classes each school-year. Advancement to the next year level requires obtaining the designated number of credits and completion of these classes. In schools with modular credit systems, students can choose their own classes.

■ Example of Full-Time High Schools

[High Schools with a General Studies Course]

All students take common subjects such as Japanese and mathematics.

[High Schools with Specialized Courses]

Students obtain basic knowledge in specialized fields such as industry, commerce, agriculture, or cross-cultural studies. In addition, they acquire skills or enhance their ability to obtain certifications.

[High Schools with an Integrated Studies Course]

In addition to common subjects, many optional subjects are offered. Students select them according to their interests.

[Empowerment Schools]

Students can revise the basics according to their level and deepen their ability to think critically on matters where there is no one correct answer.

[Schools with diverse educational practices]

Schools with meticulous support systems with about 30 students per class. In addition to common subjects, classes are conducted using experiential learning that makes best use of the unique characteristics of the school's local region.

<High Schools with Multiple-Class Credit Systems (“Creative Schools”)>

■ Period of time at school

1st session = in the morning (generally 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.)

2nd session = in the afternoon (generally 1:00 p.m. to 5:00 p.m.)

■ Course length

If a student attends 1st & 2nd sessions = 3+ years

If a student attends 1st & 2nd sessions separately = 4+ years

■ Types of Classes

Students can choose subjects and class hours to match their lifestyle or learning pace. Classes are available in the 1st or 2nd sessions. Class lengths can vary from full-year to half-year.

<High Schools Offering Daytime and Evening Credit Systems>

■ Period of time at school

Students choose their desired periods from 1st to 10th (from 10:50 a.m. to 9:05 p.m.).

For example,

Mostly daytime classes from about 10:50 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Mostly evening classes from about 5:35 to 9:05 p.m.

■ Course length

3 years, if mostly daytime classes. 4 years, if mostly evening classes.

3 years, if combined with some day-course subjects.

■ Types of Classes

Students can choose class hours to match their life-style and learning pace.

The class schedule for 1st year students is fixed and they study mainly mandatory subjects for graduation.

Students from 2nd year can choose their subjects based on interest and plans for their future.

<High Schools Offering Evening Part-Time Courses>

■ Period of time at school

Many schools have classes from 6:00 p.m. to around 9:00 p.m.

■ Course length

4 years

3 years or longer if taken in combination with a correspondence course

■ Types of Classes

Classes are taken in the evening. Credits are given for each class.

<High Schools Offering Correspondence Courses>

■ Period of time at school

Class attendance requirements are different from school to school but are generally 2-3 days per week. The days and frequency of attending classes are different depending on the school.

■ Course length

3 years or longer

■ Types of Classes

On days without class, students learn through self-study of notes and textbooks at home and receive guidance after submission of reports.

What are credits?

⇒ The word “credit” is used to indicate the length of time spent studying a particular course at high school. When the required learning outcomes have been achieved, a “credit” is awarded for the subject.

One credit consists of 35 lesson time units, where one unit is 50 minutes.
(50 minutes × 35 unit-time lessons = 1750 minutes)

Students graduate after completing a certain number of courses and obtaining the necessary number of credits.

A Typical Day at High School

The following are examples of everyday student activities at a full-time high school.

■ Morning

School generally begins at 8:30 a.m., and there are four lessons in the morning. Each lesson is taught by a different teacher.

■ Lunch

School lunch is not provided. Students may bring a box lunch from home or eat at the school cafeteria if there is one.

■ Afternoon

There are 2 or 3 lessons in the afternoon.

■ After School

For those who are interested, there are sports or cultural club activities to participate in. Participation is voluntary.

What kind of clothes should be worn to school?

⇒ School uniforms are called “Seifuku” or “Hyojun-fuku” in public secondary schools of Osaka Prefecture, and there are summer and winter versions. Most high schools require students to wear a particular school uniform, however, some schools have no uniform requirement, and students can dress freely.

A Typical Year at High School

The following is a typical school-year at a full-time high school that has a three-term school-year. You should note that some schools have a two-semester school-year. The Japanese school-year begins in April and finishes in March the following year.

■ 1st term (usually April to July)

■ Spring Vacation (late March to early April)

School Fees

School fees are required to study at school. Tuition fees vary depending on the type of school and course, i.e., private or public, part-time evening classes, correspondence courses, etc.

■ Required school fees and related expenses

- ① Examination fee = fee to take the entrance examination
- ② Admission fee = enrollment fee
- ③ Tuition fees = class fee
- ④ The cost for the first school year is the sum of fees in Categories ①, ②, and ③, plus textbook fees. In addition, school uniform fees must be paid to schools requiring them.

		① Examination fee	② Admission fee	③ Tuition fee	④ Cost for the first school year
Full-time course	Public schools	2,200 yen	5,650 yen	118,800 yen	about 300,000 yen

※ Private high schools set their own tuition fees. This is only one example.

■ Financial assistance for tuition fees

- Tuition fees at public high schools are free (except for some sundry fees) for households whose annual income is less than approximately 9.1 million yen.
- System regarding the exemption of tuition fees at private high schools and others (if you have one child) ※

Required payment for parents (not covered by fee exemption) (Assuming the official tuition fee is 600,000 yen.)	Free of charge (except for some sundry fees)	200,000 yen	481,200 yen

※ Please refer to the following URL for further information. (Available in Japanese only)

https://www.pref.osaka.lg.jp/shigaku/shigakumushouka/shigaku_mushoka_r1.html

After entrance to either a public or private high school, the parents/guardians must submit required documents.

What should I do if I can't afford the fees?

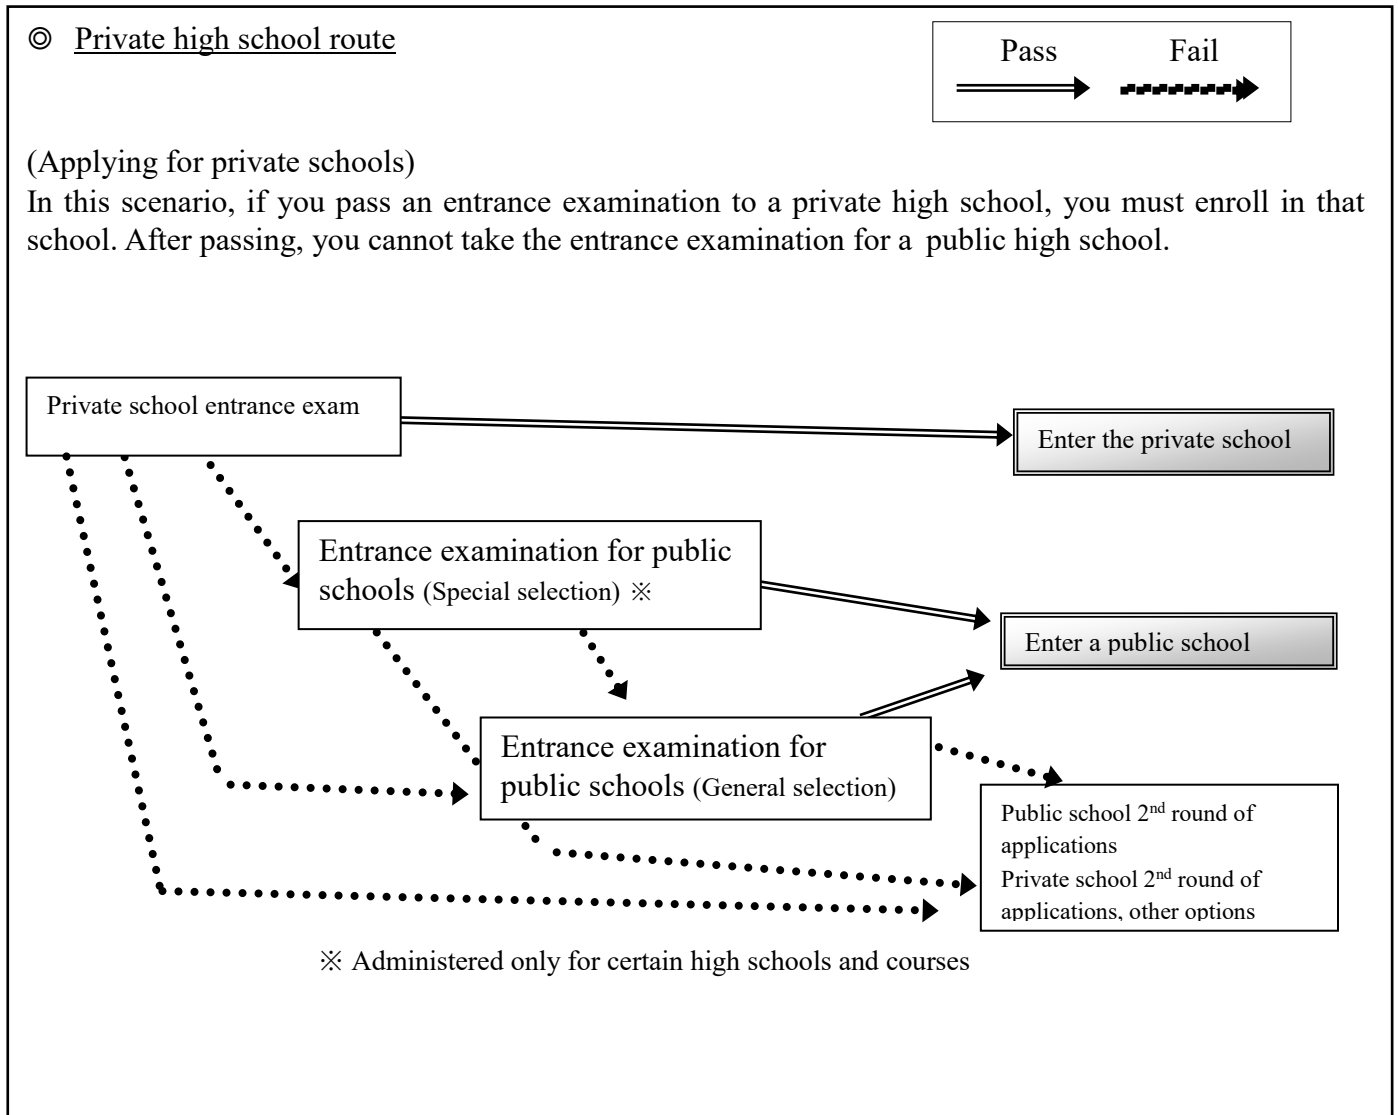

⇒ Please see Pages 21 to 23.

Entrance Examinations “Nyugaku Shiken”

An entrance examination must be taken to enter high school. The entrance examination is also called “Nyushi,” “Nyugakusha Sembatsu,” or “Sembatsu.” The following is an explanation of high school admission screening procedures.

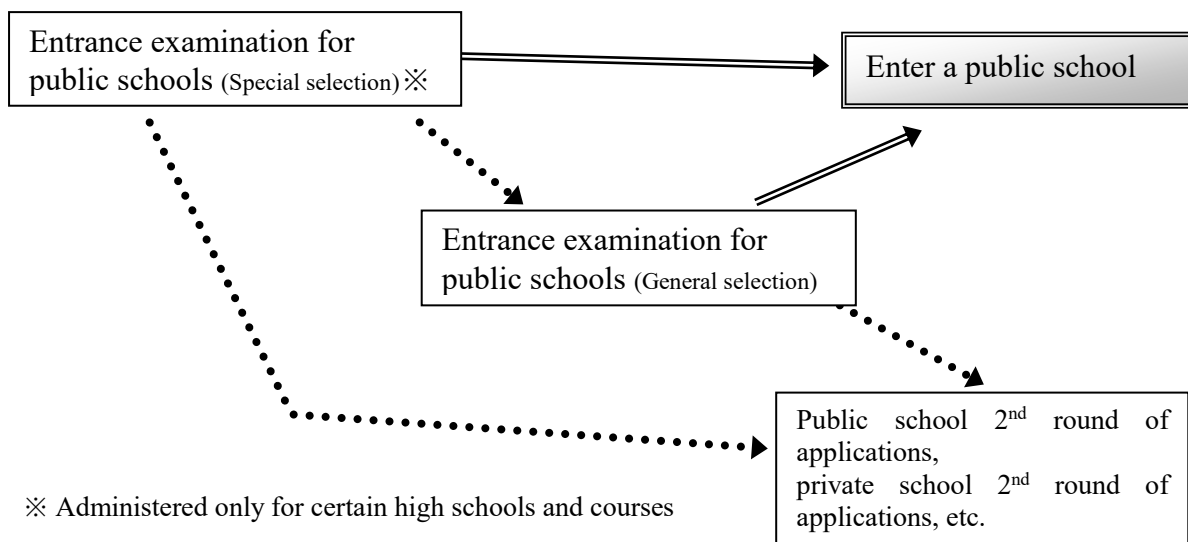

■ Stages from Entrance Exam to Entering a School

◎ Public high school route

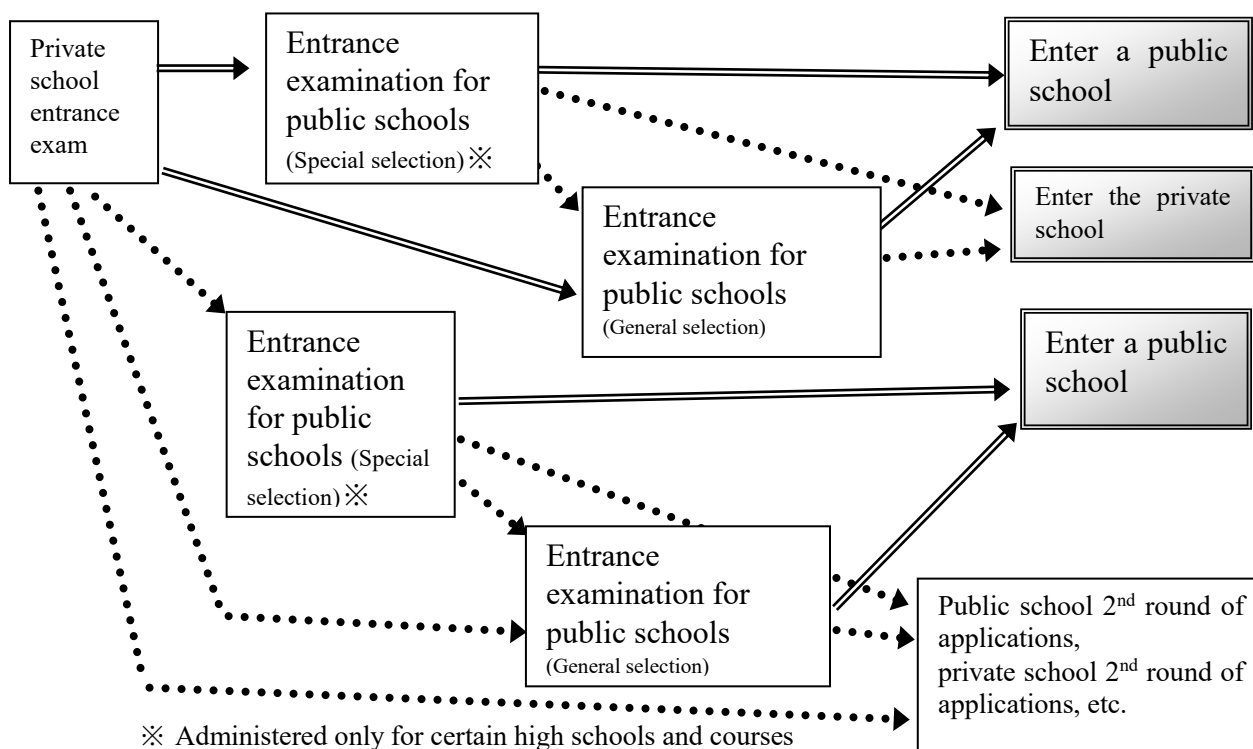

(Applying to a public school)

In this scenario, you choose to enter a public high school without taking an entrance exam at any private high schools.

(Applying for both public and private high schools)

Students who wish to enter a public high school can also take an entrance examination for a private high school if the private high school permits multiple applications. In this situation, the student can take the entrance examination for public high school even if they have passed the examination for the private high school. They can then choose to enter the public high school if they pass.

Public High Schools Admission Criteria

You should confirm the criteria for passing the admission examination and prepare accordingly.

Successful candidates will be determined based on the results of the entrance examination(s), including the academic proficiency test, the content of their transcript, self-assessment report and the interview(s).

■ Transcript “Chosasho”

A transcript refers to a written report prepared by a teacher at the junior high school to which the student belongs or belonged. This document is sent to high schools the applicant wishes to enter. It includes academic results (called “hyotei”) in nine subjects (Japanese, social studies, mathematics, science, English, music, fine arts, physical education and health studies, and manual arts and home economics) and records of activities and behaviors regarding the student (e.g., contribution to the student council, the school committee, or a club and records of usual behaviors of the student in the school). The academic results in this document are rated with numbers between 1 (lowest) and 5 (highest).

■ Self-assessment report “Jiko-shinkokusho”

A self-assessment report is submitted along with the application form and is a document in which the applicant writes a summary of his or her prior study and ambitions and vision for high school life according to a predetermined theme given by the high school the applicant wishes to enter. In principle, the report has to be written by the applicant without someone else’s help. (Entrance examinations for foreign students and for returnee students who require Japanese Language Assistance do not require a self-assessment report.)

■ Interview “Mensetsu”

In an interview, examiners from a high school will question the applicant based on the content of his or her self-assessment report.

Please refer to Pages 12 and 13 to confirm which courses etc., require an interview.

In principle, high schools determine which candidates will be accepted by examining the applicant’s academic performance, the content of their self-assessment report, and how much they fit with the school’s own Admission Policy (expected skills and character of their students). Please read the Admission Policy of the school(s) you wish to enter carefully while you prepare your self-assessment report.
